Dear John:

Having just returned from my rather extensive overseas trip on Agency matters, I hasten to let you know that the arrangements for the 6-7 April meeting of the National Security Agency Scientific Advisory Board seem to be progressing well, as a result of your meeting with Mr. Clark, Captain Baltwick, and Captain McDonald on 28 February.

It has been brought to my attention that you plan to visit the Agency prior to the meeting for the purpose of reviewing the final agenda. Noting this, I am not sending advance copies to the Board members. I am simply telling them that it is planned to provide a series of presentations to the Board, bringing the members up to date on the major problem areas of the Agency. In this regard, incidentally, Mr. Clark has drawn up an apparently very well rounded program for the Board, commencing at 9:00 a.m. on 6 April in the Staff Conference Room.

I am looking forward to seeing you soon.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM F. FRIEDMAN
 Executive Secretary
 NSA Scientific Advisory Board
